Scheduled To End Talks on Drafting W. Berlin Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western foreign ministers were reported today to have made good progress in agreeing on military, political, and other countermeasures that may be used by the Allied powers against Soviet pressures on West Berlin.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and the foreign ministers of Britain, France and West Germany were scheduled to wind up their three-day Washington conference early this afternoon.

Rusk was scheduled to go to New York Sunday for the opening days of the U.N. General Assembly, beginning Tuesday, and for exploratory talks on Berlin with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Favors Berlin Meeting

The foreign ministers meeting with Rusk—Britain's Lord Home, France's Maurice Couve de Murville and West Germany's Heinrich von Brentano—are reported to consider the Rusk-Gromyko probing operation of crucial importance. Britain, and apparently the United States, favor an East-West foreign ministers meeting on Berlin in October or November if Gromyko brings word that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is ready for negotiations on what the Western powers would consider reasonable terms.

On the other hand, information from inside the conference is that the four Western ministers agreed that they will not become involved in any negotiations in which Khrushchev clearly intends to dictate the terms and humiliate the West. If that is the attitude which Gromyko displays to Rusk, the judgment of the Western ministers is reported to be that prospects of a shooting war over Berlin will be very great.

Informants said the Western foreign ministers have considered the possibility of making Berlin an open city or of establishing U.N. agencies in Berlin as a guarantee of its independence.

Enters Final Day

The Western policy meeting here went into its final day amid a rash of rumors about possible new moves by the Soviet Union and Communist East Germany in the Berlin crisis. The ministers learned Friday that the U.S. government has reports that the East German regime plans "the arrest and mass deportation" of people living on the Communist side of the Berlin and East German boundaries.

The State Department, meanwhile, heard rumors that Khrushchev was speeding up his plan for signing a separate peace treaty with the East German regime and might take the step as early as Sunday.

One of the major problems before Rusk and the foreign ministers has been what counteraction to take if the Reds undertake new moves.

Officials said that plans actual-

Five Cases Ignored

34 Persons Indicted By Grand Jury

LISBON—The September Grand Jury returned true bills against 32 persons and two secret indictments when it reported in Common Pleas Court Friday afternoon, ending three and a half days of deliberation. Five cases involving six defendants were ignored.

Judge Joel H. Sharp excused the panel of nine men and six women until Thursday morning when it will return to hear testimony by John Gleason, assistant state Atty. General, in regard to Saleslook Co., which state officials, headed by Atty. General Mark McElroy, raided Sept. 6.

Arraignment day is set for Sept. 25, with trials expected to start Oct. 9 before Judge Sharp.

Indictments were returned against the following:

Hamblet Brooks, 83, of East Liverpool, second degree murder in the shooting of his wife, Louise Brooks, 81, in their home, Aug. 26.

Homer R. Williams of Chester, W. Va., first degree manslaughter in the death of Wilbert Willard Jr. of Tampa, Fla., in a tavern fight June 4.

Senate Clash Near On Filibuster Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern opponents appeared to have the upper hand today as Senate leaders signaled for the start of a fight over a proposed rules change to make it easier to choke off filibusters.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana planned to move to take up a measure that would permit debate to be cut off by three-fifths of the senators present and voting, rather than the two-thirds as is now required.

With the support of Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Mansfield said he would follow with a petition to limit debate on the proposed rules change.

Under this procedure, a vote will automatically come one hour after the Senate meets Tuesday on the question of whether to limit debate. This is expected to mark the turning point of the battle.

If debate limitation is invoked—and it will take a two-thirds majority under present rules—then each senator will be allowed to speak for only one hour.

This would clear the way for bringing the proposed rules change to a vote. But if the move to limit debate fails, the Southern forces will be able to filibuster against any action.

Civil rights forces have protested that the end of a session is the worst possible time to try to change the Senate's rules. They contend it plays into the hands of the Southerners because senators are tired and anxious to go home.

The filibuster has been Southerners' most potent weapon in beating of civil rights legislation. Sen. Richard B. Russell, chief strategist for the Dixie forces, contends that advocates of a new rule for halting filibusters are more interested in passing legislation to alter the economy.

Since the Senate first adopted an antifilibuster rule in 1917, 32 attempts have been made to limit debate. Only four times have the moves succeeded—the last time in 1927.

Under the new distribution program 20 of the larger offices in Ohio have been set up as sectional centers with truck routes connecting these various offices. Each of these centers will, in turn, serve their smaller and neighboring post offices by truck routes.

Salem will be served directly from the Youngstown Post Office and, in turn, will handle all mail moving to and from post offices in East Palestine, Columbiana, Leetonia, Lisbon, Elkton, N. E. Rogers, Signal, West Point, Han-

1,910 Aailed Themselves of Chest X-Rays

The Salem Board of Health at its regular meeting this week passed a resolution thanking various individuals and organizations for their help in the recent visit of the Ohio Department of Health's mobile X-ray unit here.

Dr. R. T. Holzbach, city health commissioner, reported that a total of 1,916 persons received free chest X-rays during the three-day visit of the mobile unit here.

Included in the "resolution of thanks" passed by the Salem Board of Health were The Ohio Edison Co. for its contribution of labor and electricity, nurses, clerks and the American Red Cross Gray Ladies.

U. S. Begins Underground Test Series

No-Fallout Blast Fired In Remote Area of Nevada

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States began its underground nuclear test series with an apparently junior-size blast packing a punch equivalent to 1,000 tons of TNT—possibly less.

President Kennedy announced that Friday's low yield, no-fallout underground explosion took place in a remote, highly guarded section of Nevada. There was no advance announcement and the blast was not audible in the nearest city, Las Vegas, 65 miles away.

Produced No Fallout

In his statement, Kennedy said, "The detonation has produced no fallout. This is in marked contrast to the Soviet nuclear tests in the atmosphere."

He added, "The United States once again reaffirms its readiness to negotiate a controlled test ban agreement of the widest possible scope."

Fifteen days ago, the Soviets junked their three-year moratorium on nuclear testing. They have fired 10 blasts into the atmosphere in their current test series.

There have been reports from an authoritative source that a series of 24 U.S. weapons was ready for testing as soon as Kennedy gave the go-ahead.

The known facts about the force of Friday's U.S. test are these:

1. The White House described the explosive yield of the blast only as one of "low yield."
2. A University of California seismologist reported that his seismograph had recorded the earthquake from the blast. He said its magnitude on the earthquake scale of reckoning was 4. That would be a moderate earthquake.

It was the 104th nuclear explosion at the Nevada proving grounds. The 103rd shot was set off nearly three years ago.

There were no reporters present at the blast. The White House had announced that no on-the-scene coverage by news media would be permitted at future U.S. nuclear tests.

Word of the blast was flashed to Washington over an open telephone line from the test site to Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, who relayed it over a direct line to the President at the White House.

But at Las Vegas a sonic boom from a fast flying airplane 28 minutes after the blast was mistaken for the nuclear explosion.

In the old days of testing—before October 1958—mighty flashes, mushroom clouds and devastating booms rewarded viewers who turned out to watch the show.

Freight Cars Derailed At Columbiana

Five ore cars of a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train were derailed in an accident near Columbiana village at 2 a. m. today.

The tracks were not damaged but the Route 344 grade crossing near the Kaiser Chemicals plant was blocked.

Railroad officials estimated that all cars would be put back on the tracks by early afternoon.

A Pennsy detective told Deputy Sheriff Herman Wellman that one car on the 88-car train became derailed near the Route 164 underpass near Columbiana and that the engine became uncoupled and slowed down suddenly, causing the cars to come together and jackknife.

The train was westbound. The derailment today followed three previous freight train accidents near East Palestine within the past month.

Body of Drowning Victim Recovered

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP) — The body of Edward Wilson, 50, a Wellsville potter, was recovered early today from the mouth of Yellow Creek where it empties into the Ohio River.

Wilson was been fishing with his stepson, C. H. Fluhrty, when he slipped off an old bridge abutment and fell into deep water Friday night.

Mississippi Jails 15 Clergymen

Sentenced After Desegregation Try

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The son-in-law of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and 14 other Episcopal clergymen faced a weekend in jail today instead of attending their church convention.

The ministers—12 white persons and three Negroes — were convicted Friday night on charges of breach of the peace for attempting to desegregate a bus terminal white waiting room.

The ministers, including Rockefeller's son-in-law, The Rev. Robert L. Pierson, 35, of New York City and Evanston, Ill., were fined $200 and sentenced to four months in jail.

The same weekend fate didn't face Yale University Chaplain William S. Coffin, a Presbyterian or nine other "Freedom Riders," convicted on breach of peace charges in Montgomery, Ala.

Judge Alex Marks ordered fines of $100 and jail terms ranging from 10 to 90 days for that group Friday night. They immediately posted appeal bond of $750 to $1,000 and were released.

No move was made in Jackson to post bond for the ministers who were en route to the 60th General Convention of the Episcopal Church Sunday in Detroit, Mich. Thirteen others in the group did not attempt desegregation. Seven of them expected to continue on to Detroit by plane.

Before sentencing, Municipal Judge James Spencer, who is also an Episcopalian, told the courtroom, "I find my duty clear. I believe they violated the laws of Mississippi and the articles of religion of their faith."

Special prosecutor Robert Nichols, an Episcopalian, said one of the articles of religion admonished Episcopalians to obey civil authority.

The Rev. John Crocker, 37, of Providence, R. I., testified for the defense.

Judge Spencer said he was impressed by the Rev. Crocker's feeling that the racial question, was national rather than purely local.

Shaw Re-Elected By County Group

LISBON — Clifford Shaw of Lisbon RD 4, was re-elected for the third term as chairman of the Columbiana County Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Committee Friday at Village Hall.

Other members of the committee are J. Galen Bowman, Lisbon RD 4, first member; J. Glenn Bates of Salem, second member; George Pollock, Lisbon RD 1, first alternate, and Carl H. Daiger, Lisbon RD 3, second alternate.

Bowman, Pollock and Daiger were on the committee this year but held different positions. Bates, a field man for the past 10 years, had served on the committee previously, according to Earl Lora, manager of the county office.

The committee will assume its duties Oct. 1.

Plans Move Ahead On Riverlake Road

Engineering work is moving on schedule for the second southern phase of the East Liverpool - Ash-tabula freeway, stretching from the East Liverpool city limits in California Hollow to a point at Substation, the board of directors of the Lake Erie-Ohio River Highway Association was assured Friday in a conference with State Highway Department officials in Salem.

Preparation of detailed plans and specifications for the stretch should be complete by late November or early December, which means the department will be ready to call for contractors' bids early in 1962, the group was told.

In earlier announcements, the department had indicated it might let contracts late in 1961, but the new schedule will mean no delay in construction, the highway officials said. Although a contract might have been let late this year, no significant work on construction could have been done before next spring, they pointed out.

East Liverpool was represented at the meeting at the Salem Golf Club by Atty. Francis H. Lang and E. R. Chandler, secretary - manager of the Chamber of Commerce. A. P. Morris of Salem, the third member of the association's board from Columbiana County, also was present. J. Paul Mossman, manager of the Youngstown Area Chamber of Commerce, is president.

Representing Salem at the session were Victor Ballenger, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and Atty. Lozier Caplan, chairman of the C. of C.'s highways committee.

The California Hollow-West End Freeway, now more than 50 per cent complete, represents the southernmost segment of the lake-river highway. It ends at the East

Garage At Rogers Leveled By Fire

The house was scorched. Damages are estimated at $2,000 to $2,500.

About 15 men were on duty for one and one half hours from Elk-run Township, Lisbon, Nevley fire departments and the Civil defense tank truck also was used.

JFK Scores Victory on Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy scored a victory as Senators restored almost all House cuts in the foreign aid money bill. Now Senate and House conferees will try to compromise the $533-million difference.

By a 62-17 vote Friday, the Senate approved $420 billion for foreign aid, restoring all but $63 million of the $596 million slashed from the bill by the House.

The aid funds are included in an over-all money bill of $4.42 billion, carrying funds for foreign assistance programs and related projects. One item is $40 million asked by Kennedy for his Peace Corps.

By unanimous voice vote, Senators adopted an amendment opposing aid to nations professing neutrality who actually take sides against the West. The amendment, offered by Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N. Y., reflected the concern, expressed by President Kennedy over the refusal of nonaligned nations to criticize the Soviet Union for resumption of nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

The Senate version of the foreign aid money bill would give Kennedy the full $1.2 billion he asked for economic development loans abroad this year. The President says he considers the loan fund for struggling nations the heart of his new foreign aid program.

The aid term was suspended by Judge Louis Tobin on condition Enochs leave Columbiana County.

Confident Living

By Dr. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Don't Make Yourself Unhappy

Enroute by train from Chicago to New York I went to the dining car and was seated opposite a man and his wife. The woman was conspicuously well-dressed. She was stylishly gowned, had a strikingly beautiful fur piece around her shoulders, and was wearing handsome jewelry. You didn't need unusual discernment to perceive that there must be money in the family.

This woman was not pleased with anything. She complained about the airconditioning not being properly adjusted. She complained that the table cloth looked mussy and insisted on the steward's putting on a new one. She complained about the food. She complained about the weather. Everything was wrong.

HER HUSBAND seemed to be an easy-going, genial sort of man. He didn't seem to be paying much attention to his wife's fussing. He and I got to talking. He asked what line of business I was in. I told him I was a minister. I asked what his business was, and he told me. Then he said, "My wife is in business, too."

"She is?" I responded in some surprise. "I didn't take her for a businesswoman."

"Oh, yes," he said. "She's in the manufacturing business."

"Is that so? What does she manufacture?"

"She manufactures unhappiness," he answered. "Her own unhappiness."

Well, the atmosphere at the table grew a bit chilly. But presently we were able to thaw it out a bit and finally draw the woman into an objective discussion of whether it can be said that unhappiness is, for the most part, self-manufactured.

THE PLAIN FACT IS, I think, that we ourselves are the cause of most of our unhappiness. To be sure, our physical condition affects the way we feel. So does the social climate, the way our personal plans are working out, local conditions, even the condition of the world. And much of the time the conditions are adverse, causing us irritation, tension, disappointment, depression, frustration of all kinds. But that is the way things are for everybody—always were and always will be. So it doesn't explain why some human beings have such happy dispositions and others are always gloomy and low in spirit. When you come right down to it, happiness depends primarily upon an attitude of mind.

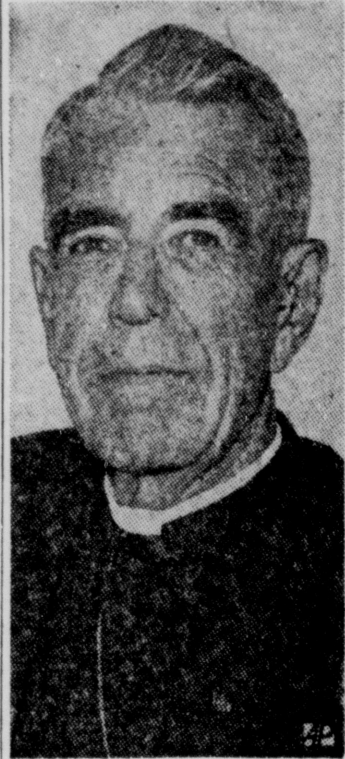

A man once told me of himself: "With me it used to be all negativism. There were a great many people I didn't like. Things rubbed me the wrong way. I was wearing myself out with depressing thoughts and I was full of anxieties. I didn't think humanity had any future, either, and I could have given you a long list of all the catastrophes which someday might overwhelm us."

"THEN I WENT TO a Billy Graham meeting when he was here in New York. The spirit of God got to working in me. I followed Billy's advice and committed my life to God. As a result I became filled with new hope and peace of mind. God led me into new ways of thinking. And the time came when I realized that I was happy, real happy. "I don't mean my troubles all just disappeared. But many things that had eluded me seemed now to come to me of themselves. And what is more, I now actually take pleasure in the problems that previously got me down. At least I'm not afraid of them any more. All in all I have a sense of harmony in my living."

One thing is sure—this man stopped manufacturing unhappiness for himself. By a new attitude of mind he became a happy person.

In the Book of Proverbs we read, "Who so trusteth in the Lord, happy is he." If you trust in God you have the secret of happiness at all times, anywhere, no matter what your circumstances are. But you have to practice remembering this and feeling it. As we practice, so do we become. If you practice unhappiness, you will be an unhappy person. If you practice happiness you will be happy. It's just that simple. The royal road to happiness is the attitude, "Trust God and practice being happy."

CAN'T REACH HIM...

They call him a problem child. "Can't reach him," say some. "He won't respond," echo others. Young as he is, he's already been in trouble with the police.

Why? There are lots of words, lots of phrases, to describe youngsters like this. The papers are full of them every day. There are lots of excuses given—for him, and for society. Are they valid?

This boy has parents. Why can't they reach him? Is it, perhaps, because they can't really reach themselves? Because they've never found themselves?

Self-discovery takes courage. It doesn't come easily. It takes help. It demands faith. The starting point for a quest of this kind is in the Church. This boy needs the Church. So do his parents. So, for that matter, do we all!

No Sin In Conservatism

The political phenomenon of Barry Goldwater is that he comes right out and says he is a conservative.

That has been an allegedly dirty word in American politics for a quarter of a century or more. A candidate might be, in fact, a conservative thinker who stood for and voted for conservative philosophies, but if he wanted to get elected he was not supposed to admit he was a conservative.

Sen. Goldwater concedes this in his speeches for the conservative cause, and he uses the concession to support his claim that conservatism is on the upsurge.

He cites the responsive chord he has struck among young people on college campuses, pointing out that only a few years back it was next to impossible to find a self-professed conservative on any campus.

But simultaneously Sen. Goldwater implies that the slanderous connotation foisted upon the conservative label is and always has been a fraud. He believes the American people are and always have been essentially conservative in their thinking about the proper relationship between themselves as individuals and their government.

IF THIS IS TRUE, then the upsurge of conservatism which Sen. Goldwater is promoting is not the birth of something new, but a change in attitude about something that has been around since the founding fathers drew their blueprint.

Sen. Goldwater has taken the offensive for the conservative cause, and he is urging those who agree with him to do the same. He started by throwing off the cloak of political fear about being called a conservative, and he urges others to do the same.

He is plugging for political realism in the party of his choice as well as in the governmental system he seeks to preserve.

If the United States really is powerful, wealthy and dedicated to human freedom, he believes it should conduct its foreign affairs in that manner.

If the voters of the United States really do cherish their individual liberties, their economic advancement, their political heritage, he believes they ought to rise up against the pressure system which seeks to convince them they are incapable of deciding what is good for themselves.

To do that, Sen. Goldwater says, it is not necessary, or even desirable, for all Americans to conform to every dotted "I" and crossed "t" in pie-in-the-sky platforms purporting to show the way. Conformity is the antagonist of freedom; it is what conservatives foresee in the ever-broadening grasp of Big Brotherism in Washington.

SEN. GOLDWATER is not so unrealistic as to try to create the idea that his popularity around the nation indicates everybody agrees with him on every dotted "i" and crossed "t".

But he believes a majority of Americans agrees with him on the fundamentals of what it takes to be an American. And he wants that majority to throw off the mantle of defensiveness and act, politically, like a majority.

Then there would be no more question about the respectability of being a conservative. Conservatives would want to be called by their right name.

It Was a Mighty Battle

Military events at Elisabethville in the Congo's Katanga province this week would mean no more than the latest drill of the Podunk Drum and Bugle Corps, except for one thing.

One belligerent is a shadow military force wearing the insignia of the United Nations. Asiatic Indians, European Swedes and off-shore Irishmen were the U.N. troops. Their general is from India. Dag Hammarskjold, U.N. secretary-general, was en route from headquarters in New York City when Elisabethville was ablaze with guns.

The military events at Elisabethville reflected the policy of the United Nations, which supports the United Nations.

What happened there? Probably nothing conclusive happened, though the outcome of skirmishing between Katanga troops and U.N. troops is reported to have been a victory for the latter.

THE MOST SIGNIFICANT result was the departure of President Moise Tshombe and his right-hand man, Godefroid Munongo, for parts unknown. This may have marked a climax in the pushing-out process that began a year ago last August when Secretary-General Hammarskjold led 240 Swedish troops of the U.N. force into Katanga province to force the departure of the Belgian troops that Tshombe wanted to stay.

And what was the issue then? The same as the issue now.

Katanga province was unwilling to throw in its lot with the wild and undisciplined tribal-mash spurred on by extremists like Patrice Lumumba after the Congo was cut loose from Belgium on July 1, 1960.

Its leader, Tshombe, believed Lumumba and his faction were dominated by Communists. He mistrusted them and all other Congolese politicians who threatened to make a mockery of independence from Belgium.

Tshombe never quit mistrusting the politicians who tried to unseat him so Katanga province could be integrated into the Republic of Congo. This drew to him the implacable opposition of U.N. officials trying to put the republic on its feet.

SOONER OR LATER, the resolved, Tshombe had to go. Whether he now has gone for good is doubtful; he may be back before this comment on his going can reach print. But he will be forced out eventually if it continues to be the decision of the United Nations to force him out. It is stronger than Katanga.

The skirmish at Elisabethville was neither a beginning nor an end, but it may have been the beginning of an end for Tshombe, who never trusted the mercurial Lumumba and doesn't trust the new premier, Cyrille Adoula, either.

And now he has no reason to trust the United Nations, which he charges with betraying him. The whole mess, it seems to us puts United States and American dollars on the side of the enemies of anti-Communist Tshombe.

Trying to Prove What?

We think it would be a good idea to heed France's President De Gaulle on the subject of Berlin.

Why, asked the tough-minded Frenchman in a news conference earlier this month, are the Russians stirring up the Berlin question now? What are they trying to prove?

He suspects they are trying to prove that the hand is quicker than the eye; that they are trying to distract attention from one thing by making a fuss over another thing.

This invites the speculation that runs on endlessly about Khrushchev and the Communist Conspiracy.

RUSSIAN COMMUNISTS under Khrushchev may be trying to keep the world from little noting or long remembering evidence that Red China is flourishing.

As the rocket-rattling partner of the Sino-Russian axis, the Soviet Union may be flexing its muscles to draw attention away from a weakened fellow conspirator.

Or some political situation inside the Soviet Union may make it desirable for Khrushchev to assert himself vigorously at this time, a month before the convention of the Russian Communist party in mid-October.

No Special Help For New York

Ohio Sen. Frank J. Lausche is going against the grain of his fellow Democrats by blocking a chance to blow millions of federal dollars on the 1964-65 "world's fair" in New York.

He also is going against the grain of New Yorkers of both political parties accustomed to the idea that their city is entitled to comparably vast sums of federal money to help it solve its endless problems.

But the Ohio senator has taken the right position.

A "world's fair" in New York City is not the kind of project that calls for help from the rest of us.

If we go to the fair—and many of us will go to it—we will pay handsomely for the privilege. Not only will the money-takers at the fair have their hands out, but New York City will have its hand out. Nothing will be free.

Sen. Lausche says he is blocking the expenditure of as much as $30 million for a federal building on the site of the New York fair because it was agreed when Congress approved New York as the site of the fair that no federal money would be sought. He thinks the agreement should be honored.

The fair is a straight-out commercial venture. If it's a good show, it will draw enough customers to make everybody happy, and the customers themselves will be easier to please if they weren't clipped for $30 million in advance.

Every time you turn green with envy you're ripe for trouble.

Almost Kickoff Time Again?

Christianity's Mystery

By GARRETT MCGURN

ROME City. "Do your best to come before winter, Eubulus sends greetings to you as do Pudens and Linus and Claudia and all the brethren." —St. Paul's Second Epistle to Timothy, IV, 21

Not all the world or even all of Europe is paralyzed wondering about Berlin, or are they all even concerned with the immediate problems of this month and century. A good example are excavations quietly going on now in Rome hunting for the house of St. Peter.

The digging is under the 1,600-year-old Church of Saint Pudentiana on the Viminal, one of the seven ancient hills of the Eternal

City. The work started as a hobby of Alberto Cardinal di Jorio, one of Pope John XXIII's closest friends, and then expanded when the Rome city engineers found the old church in danger of collapsing because of an underground stream.

One thing provided an opportunity and encouragement for another and now the archaeologists, construction experts and laborers are taking advantage of the chance to investigate one of the central mysteries of Christianity's origins in Rome.

ACCORDING to Christian tradition dating at least to the sixth century A.D., the Church of Saint Pudentiana is on the site of property belonging to the Pudens family, one of the earliest Christian groups in Rome.

Whether the "Pudens" is the same one St. Paul mentioned in the final epistle before his execution about 65 A.D. has been a subject of learned speculation for centuries. The diggers may now provide some answers.

Even identifying the structure definitely with the man mentioned in St. Paul's letter to Timothy would be a capital discovery but excavators led by Giovanni di Geso of the Rome City Archeological Department hope for more.

Tradition from about the sixth century insists not only that the house is that of Pudens, a Roman senator but that St. Peter visited him and even used the place as his own first residence in the ancient Roman capital.

For Catholics who have always insisted that Peter was Rome's original bishop and first in the line of Popes, archaeological support of the Pudens tradition would be of greatest significance.

So far, however, excavations going on in recent weeks have turned up nothing earlier than the second century after Christ. Thus far the digging confirms what three previous excavations revealed in the course of the past 100 years.

The work will proceed, however, and hope of finding "at least some monument" testifying to Peter's presence is still nurtured, according to Di Geso.

FINDINGS so far are similar to those under St. Peter's Basilica itself. There the archaeologists, working with special permission of the late Pope Pius XII, explored the site of the believed grave of St. Peter but found no masonry prior to 140 A.D., a date 75 years after the apostle is believed to have been crucified in Rome.

The excavations so far under St. Pudentiana confirm that the church itself was built about 400 A.D. using the walls of a Roman bathhouse of the second century after Christ. Beneath the bathhouse is a Roman dwelling also of the second century.

From the side of the 16th-century-old main church protrudes a chapel bearing indications that it dates from the second century. What is known so far establishes St. Pudentiana's at least as one of the ten most ancient Christian places of worship surviving in Rome, Di Geso says. Should any proof of Peter's presence be found "this would become Rome's No. 1 church," he adds.

The diggers are now nearly 25 feet below the present Roman street level. Centuries of mud and rubbish washing down the sides of the Viminal have buried the ancient remains deeper and deeper underground.

Even if the mystery of the missing century separating New Testament tradition and archaeological evidence remains unsolved, one practical result already has been obtained. The 700-year-old medieval belltower which had been leaning ever closer to the church has stopped sagging.

The diggers found that the men of the Middle Ages who had erected the tower had perched it probably unknowingly atop a now crumbling ancient Roman room. New masonry has been fitted underneath and the room and tower are now safe from further damage.

Paar Incident Not Deserving Of Fuss It Caused

"What was all the hullabaloo about?"

This question undoubtedly came from the lips of many millions of persons after they'd watched the television show filmed by Jack Paar in West Berlin a few days ago and presented late Tuesday night by the National Broadcasting Co. over a large network of stations.

Anyone who saw the program, as did this correspondent, must have wondered why members of Congress who hadn't seen it, but had read newspaper accounts of the filming episode itself, went off the deep end in their criticism. In fact, the Pentagon — without waiting to see the pictures — removed one colonel from his post and admonished another who had helped to arrange or had participated in the affair.

This led a lot of Americans to believe that some grievous error had been committed. The filmed show itself didn't bear out the news stories that had been written about it, particularly with regard to the presence of armed vehicles and the number of soldiers at the scene.

Actually, the show did more to enlighten the American people about the inhumane acts of the Communists in separating families in East Berlin from relatives in West Berlin, and generally disrupting the life of a peaceful community, than may have been obtained from reading some of the fragmentary news accounts over a series of days.

It was Confucius who said that "a picture is worth 10,000 words." While this may often be exaggerated, many viewers got for the first time from the photographs of the walls and barricades and sealed-up apartments on the line the impact of the physical imprisonment of the East Germans. The pictures were vividly interspersed with the comments by Jack Paar and his capable assistant, Peggy Cass, who together did the kind of job that many a newscaster has done on news events in the past.

THE YEAR happens to be 1961 and not 1931, and television is just another form of communication included in the term "the press."

There wouldn't have been any debate in Congress if some well-known reporter had gone to the West Berlin border and interviewed the American commander and his troops and had gotten from them impressions of the task they were doing.

What Jack Paar did was to talk briefly to 15 or 20 soldiers out of the many hundreds scattered inside the city along the borderline. He merely asked them to give their names and their home towns. This was, of course, to provide some parents or relatives back home a chance to see their loved ones.

The colonel in charge answered a few routine questions which wouldn't have caused a ripple if the interview had been obtained by a newspaper reporter.

It will be said that in a time of tension this sort of episode can create an "incident" or bring on international complications. But the Communists had their photographers there, too, as well as moviemen, and they made pictures of the whole scene from their side of the line.

Incidentally, there wasn't a single thing about it that was funny or intended as comedy. In fact, one felt a little sorry for Jack Paar and his staff as they worked in the pouring rain.

It was on the whole a serious affair, and had it been done by some of the regular newscasters it would have been regarded as a news feature or special news project.

AMERICANS watching the program not only saw pictures of the way a city has been sealed off but were given also some significant sidelights.

There was, for instance, a picture of a big handbill, turned toward East Berlin, proclaiming that citizens of West Berlin had offered a $2,500 reward for information that would lead to the capture of the Communist who shot and killed a teen-age youngster as he sought to swim to freedom from East to West Berlin. The boy had reached the West Berlin side and was clearly out of East Berlin when the Communist bullet ended his life.

There was no excuse for the murder. It so happens that a photograph of the killer was obtained, and it was placed on the poster. So sooner or later one Communist murderer may pay for his crime.

To many watching the show the thought must have occurred that those members of Congress who became so vehement over the filming of the show might better have spent their time expressing a sense of outrage over the murder of this and other East Germans who had risked their lives to escape their Communist prison.

This West Berlin - East Berlin affair isn't tensed up every minute of the day. There are hours of monotony, and hence a filming of the scene with a few soldiers on hand didn't affect any military operations at all. But in presenting worth-while information—or even propaganda against Communism—the Jack Paar show was an effective piece of work.

He deserves not brickbats but applause for his revelation of the human story behind the Berlin crisis.

One thing that can be said for the critics is that, by their advance comments, they helped to boost tremendously the audience for the show on Tuesday night.

Double Talk

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—How good are you at double talk?

You may think you don't use double talk at all. But you do—probably many times every day.

To double talk merely means to say one thing when you actually mean something else.

Double talk is by no means confined to the realm of politics and international diplomacy. It is equally popular in business, marriage and the day-to-day diplomacy of ordinary social life.

It is not only popular; it is essential. Otherwise, if we told the exact truth in all situations, we'd all be at each other's throats in no time—and society would explode in chaos.

For double talk is both the measure and mortar of civilization. The more double talk, the higher and more cultured the civilization.

A man today who says exactly what he means at all times is regarded as an eccentric if he's rich, and crazy if he's poor.

Here is a partial glossary of double talk phrases—and what they really mean—which you may read or use yourself at almost any time:

"What a pleasant surprise—bumping into you this way!" means if I'd seen you coming, I'd have run the other way.

"What's new with you?" means don't tell me. I've got my own troubles.

"Haven't you put on a little weight, man?" means he must eat from a trough to get that fat.

"We like to regard this as a team organization" means I call the signals; you get the bruises.

"We must get together again real soon" means soon after the start of the 22nd century.

"No, sir. I don't think it's getting any thinner on top" means maybe if I make enough noise with the scissors this joker will really think he's got some hair left up there.

"I never saw you looking better in your life" means I wonder if I ever looked that bad.

"No, George, I insist—this one's on me" means pick up that check, you free loader. You know it's your turn.

"The boss piled a last-minute job on me. I'll be at the office late" means I will, that is, if every night club in town closes.

"It's early yet. Why don't you all stay and have one more for the road?" means what's the matter with these people? Don't they have homes of their own to go to?

"I enjoyed your last column very much" means who wrote it for you?

Fails To Connect As Yanks Split

Maris Now Even With Ruth's Pace

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

Homeless in seven games, Roger Maris faces the imposing task of hitting four home runs in five games in order to tie Babe Ruth's 1927 home run record of 60.

Maris, who spurted 24 games ahead of Ruth's pace on July 25, was caught Friday night as he came up with only one single in nine at-bats while the American League leading New York Yankees were splitting a two-nighter with second-place Detroit.

Maris, with 56 home runs, now is even with Ruth, and must hit four homers in the next five decisions—two against Detroit and three at Baltimore—to match Ruth under the 154-decision allotment specified by Commissioner Ford Frick.

Teammate Mickey Mantle fell further behind Ruth with a single, double, three walks and a sacrifice fly in nine trips against the Tigers. Mantle, with 53 homers, needs seven home runs in the five games to get a draw with the Babe.

Yanks Set Homer Record

The Yankees, however, set a major league team home run record as Yogi Berra and Bill Skowron connected in the 11-1 opening game victory and boosted the New Yorkers' total to 222 for the season, one more than the New York Giants in 1947 and incin-nati Reds in 1956.

In the nightcap, the Tigers used a two-run homer by Norm ash and a solo shot by Steve Boros for a three-run third that proved enough to subdue the Yankees 4-2. That left the Yankees magic pennant-clinching number at four.

Magic Number Is Four

Any combination of four New York victories and/or Detroit defeats will give the Yankees their 11th pennant in the last 13 years and the first under rookie manager Ralph Houk.

Boston edged Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings, Minnesota nipped Cleveland 3-2, Los Angeles beat Chicago 9-5 and Washington defeated Kansas City 3-1.

In the National League, the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers crept closer to first-place Cincinnati by belting Milwaukee 11-2 and cutting the idle Reds edge to 4½ games. The San Francisco Giants took over third place with a 5-1 victory over Chicago in the only other game scheduled.

Ford Cops No. 24

The Yankees won the first game easily behind Whitey Ford, who scattered eight hits in a route-going performance for his 24th victory against three defeats.

Berra's 20th homer, off loser Don Mossi (14-1) with one on in the fourth, put the Yankees ahead to stay.

Ron Kline (7-8) spaced seven Yankee hits in the nightcap, giving up a homer to Clete Boyer—the New Yorkers 223rd—in the fifth and an unearned tally in the eighth. Cash and Boros smacked their homers in the third.

Third of Million Fans To See NFL Games

By ROBERT MOORE

Associated Press Sports Writer

Nearly a third of a million people will turn out in person Sunday to watch the National Football League's 14 teams launch the circuit's 42nd season in play-for-pay action from New York to San Francisco.

The biggest crowds of 60,000 will view the fireworks in Philadelphia's Franklin Field where the champion Philadelphia Eagles clash with the Cleveland Browns and in New York's Yankee Stadium where the New York Giants battle the St. Louis Cardinals.

Elsewhere, 53,000 will see the Los Angeles Rams at Baltimore; 42,000 the Washington Redskins at San Francisco; 40,000, the Detroit Lions against the Green Bay Packers in Milwaukee; 40,000, the Chicago Bears at Minnesota's Metropolitan Stadium in Minneapolis; and 25,000, the Pittsburgh Steelers at Dallas.

Additional thousands will witness the inaugural on television. Philadelphia's collision with the Browns very likely will prove the day's eyebrow lifter. The Eagles,

Our Baffling Berlin Bobble (Concluding Article):

Reasoning Behind Soviet Moves

By RAY CROMLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — On June 24, 1948, on order of the Soviet Military Administration, all rail traffic from West Germany to Berlin was stopped. Highway traffic had been halted June 12. This completed the land blockade of Berlin.

The Russians started this blockade in an attempt to prevent West German currency reform. It was a part of continued Red harassment to prevent economic recovery in West Germany.

The Allied airlift kept Berlin free. Britain, France and the United States stayed in Berlin. They were able to go ahead with West German recovery. The Russian pressure created the basic conditions for the formation of a unified West Germany and the Bonn Republic.

Once the Soviet Government saw its blockade had become a liability to Soviet policy, the blockade was lifted. In May, 1949, the Reds abruptly shifted to a new "peace" policy.

DESPITE THE DEFEAT of their blockade, the Soviets made important gains. They detached East Berlin from the rest of Berlin. They integrated its population and industry into the Red East German zone. They were able henceforth to cut down on the amount of contact between West Berlin and East Germany.

In the Berlin crisis of 1961, the Russians have made similar gains. They have, for the first time, effectively sealed off the border between East Germany and West Berlin. The carefully built up crisis over Germany and the U.S. reaction—a stronger arms buildup—gave Nikita Khrushchev an excuse for resuming the testing of nuclear weapons. Under the cover of the Berlin crisis, the Reds have been able to screw tighter the police-military control of East Berlin and East Germany.

There is some opinion in the Department of Defense that, in part, the 1961 military crisis over Berlin is in part a result of U.S. refusal to take stronger action in Berlin in 1948.

IN JULY, 1948, Gen. Lucius Clay in West Germany recommended that the U.S. advise the Soviet Military Authority that under U.S. rights in Berlin the American Army would move an armed convoy to Berlin. This convoy would have the engineering material necessary to overcome the "technical difficulties" the Soviets seemed unable to solve. Washington turned down that suggestion.

This U.S. refusal to insist on holding the roads open in 1948-49, these military men believe, has caused the Soviets to figure they might be able to take further risks in Berlin without facing a showdown.

High-placed officials in the State Department say privately the U.S. is in no position to stop Khrushchev from following through with a separate peace treaty with East Germany. Nor, they say, is the U.S. in any position to force the Reds to open the border with East Berlin for Germans. There is no way the State Department now knows to prevent the Russians from designating East Germans as their agents in controlling the roads and the train routes between West Germany and Berlin.

OFFICIALS HERE see signs that Khrushchev does not expect at this time to get any more than these things. They discount his verbal threats against Western use of the air routes to Berlin.

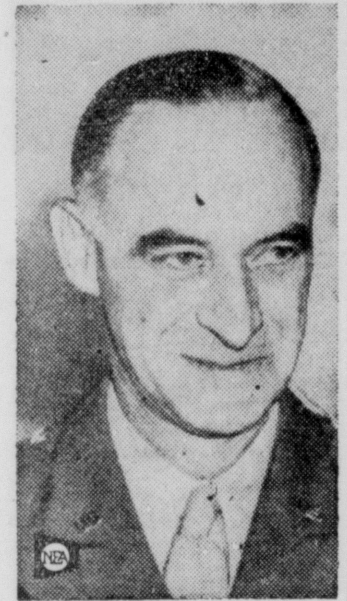

Even as the Berlin crisis waxes hotter, there are signs in Europe that the Russians may be getting ready for another shift in tactics. Some observers predict a relaxation in Berlin as soon as the Russians have tied down these German gains and finished with their current urgent series of atomic tests. European diplomats who see 1948-49 as a model, expect within the next eight months an abrupt Khrushchev shift to another "peace" offensive.

But these European diplomats don't expect a peace offensive so strong it causes the Russians to give up any of their gains.

As in 1948-49, the diplomats note that despite his bellicose words, Nikita Khrushchev has been careful—while pushing aggressively—to also leave himself a way out short of war.

(End of Series.)

CLAY: He suggested an armed convoy.

Kennedy Becomes Commuter Between Capital, Cape Cod

WASHINGTON (AP) — By this time, most summer commuters have called it a season but not President Kennedy and his jet plane weekend special to Cape Cod.

For the 12th weekend in a row, the President boarded the huge $5½ million Air Force jet Friday to leave muggy Washington, still caught in summer heat, for the cooling breezes of Hyannis Port, Mass.

And, along with him will go those members of his personal and official family who want a hitch to the shores of Cape Cod.

The presidential commuter special is obviously the best and fastest way to travel from the Capital to Cape Cod these days.

With so many Harvard and Massachusetts men in his official retinue, there are many potential hitchhikers.

Friends, children and business-bent officials have climbed aboard the presidential plane for playgrounds of the Cape this summer. Would-be passengers simply get reservations through Kennedy's secretary, Evelyn Lincoln, or his special assistant, Kenneth O'Donnell. The presidential military aide, Maj. Gen. Chester V. Clifton, gives them "space available" priority.

Government officials, congressmen, staff members, friends and family all ride free. "We don't charge them," explains assistant White House press secretary Andrew Hatcher. "The plane goes up anyway—it's just a question of whether we have room."

No figures have been made public on how much the plane trips cost the taxpayers. But a couple of years ago the Air Force said the hourly operation cost of such a jet plane was $270.86, which did not include depreciation or maintenance. The Air Force had pointed out in the past that the crew would be paid anyway, whether assigned to the presidential plane or other duty.

While the Kennedy special whips from Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland to Otis Air Force Base near Hyannis Port in a shade under an hour, any regular plane trip would tie up a Washington-Cape Cod commuter for hours. Helicopters take the President to and from the air bases. Door-to-door Kennedy can join his family at the seashore in less than an hour and a half, including the helicopter hops.

The flight rivals the best of today's expensive air travel. Soft music is wafted through the air conditioned compartments. The plane is decorated in pleasant tones of grey, blue and silver, with walls decorated with outline imprints of some of the world's most famous buildings.

The President relaxes in a private forward compartment with comfortable chairs, lounges and felt-covered tables.

Stewards serve afternoon coffee and soft drinks, chewing gum, candy and snacks. The President usually prefers soup or munches an apple en route. On the way home, usually Monday morning, a light breakfast of fruit juice, sweet rolls and coffee is substituted on the menu.

In the rear section, the President's VIP hitchhikers get luxury accommodations.

The President's plane seats 36 passengers. A commercial plane of the same size packs in about 100.

CHARGED WITH BIGAMY

CINCINNATI (AP)—A Washington Court House man was held here in lieu of $12,000 bond today on charges of bigamy.

Charges against Charles F. Kelley, 41, were filed Thursday in Cincinnati municipal court by Lois Sigert Kelley, Cincinnati, who said she was Kelley's sixth wife. She said he was married to Margaret Kelley, Columbus, at the time of their wedding Jan. 8, 1960.

East Fairfield

The Boy Scout Mothers Reserve met recently at the home of Mrs. John Burton at Signal. They made plans for the rummage sale that is to be held Sept. 29. They would appreciate donations. Contact Mrs. Robert McQuiston of New Waterford, Mrs. Bob Jones of Columbiana, or Mrs. Curtis Gorby of Rogers. The group also has made plans for the Halloween party to be held the last of October at Rogers Community Hall.

Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Bertha Esenwein and Meryl included Mrs. Fred Voslah of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Esenwein and Miss Nancy Crook.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mercer and Mr. and Mrs. Edson Mercer of New Waterford attended the Woodburn reunion at Thompson Park in East Liverpool Sunday.

Mrs. Martha Crook, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crook and family, and Mr. and Mrs. William Crook attended the Inboden family gathering Sunday in East Palestine.

CORONER GIVES RULING

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — The coroner has ruled Mrs. Thelma Jeanne Way, 32, in Portsmouth General Hospital last Saturday died of formaldehyde poisoning, probably self-administered.

Eugene Yeley, 32, who had been held for investigation in the death at first thought due to a beating or a fall, was cleared of any implication—but was turned over to Gallia County authorities on a nonsupport warrant.

Fifty Families Moving West For Better Nuclear Survival

SMITHTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—The vanguard of about 50 families in this Long Island community, seeking a better chance of survival in case of nuclear warfare, leaves this weekend to take up residence in Chico, Calif.

Alvin Bauman, 43, spokesman for the group, married and the father of two children, said Thursday: "We've been thinking this over for some time now. What finally provoked us to action was the present war scare. Some people may think it's foolish but we see nothing foolish in facing a real situation."

Bauman said Chico had been chosen, after exhaustive research, as one of the few areas in the United States that would remain habitable after atomic attacks. Other areas considered were elsewhere in Northern California, Oregon and Montana.

About 30 persons, including several children, will make up the initial contingent. A Chico real estate firm has leased 12 houses to the New Yorkers.

Many of those joining in the exodus are members of the Oh-sawa Foundation which Bauman, a member, describes as a philosophical group interested in increasing knowledge between the Orient and the West. The society was founded by Japanese scientist-philosopher George Oh-sawa. Those going to Chico include attorneys, artists, actors, teachers and businessmen. Some are single, some married.

Bauman has worked as a musician, college music teacher and, most recently, as head of a non-profit organization.

He commented: "We're rather excited by the move. Those who own their homes are selling them, and we're all looking forward to integrating into the life of our new community."
